Amusements.

Novelty in the way of prose work to be used in advance of theatrical attractions has been sought for several years, as it has been found difficult to prepare matter that was alike interesting in the many different cities included in a season's tour. The old stereotyped phrase about "a fine cast," and "elaborate production" etc., have grown tiresome to the newspaper reader and the press agent of "Simple Simon Simple," which comes to Holland's Opera house tonight, should have a vote of thanks for lapsing into poetry. Here is a specimen of his press work:

When Simple Simon's father died, The man who was to preach Sought vainly for a subject of A fine post mortem speech.

When he stopped Simon on the street, The boy was in a flutter. "Tell me, my son, the very last words Your pa was heard to utter."

Then Simon to the preacher said: All tears and much downcast, "Pa didn't have any last words, Ma was with him to the last."

"A Cowboy's Girl."

Sparkling and bright as pure water, as entertaining and interesting as a letter from home, more instructive than an entire college faculty, and as funny as a new funny page of a Sunday paper, is the consensus of opinion of both press and public as regards the new play, "A Cowboy's Girl." A great play that certainly deserves all the good things said about it. At Holland's Opera House Saturday night, March 7.

WILL COME ANYHOW.

Announced that Col. Fort Will Not Heed Request.

The County Committee of the Tobacco Association put itself on record Monday against the plan of certain admirers of Col. Joel B. Fort to bring him here next Monday for a speech. It was voted that a speech by Col. Fort at this time was not needed by the association and Col. Fort was virtually requested not to come. In spite of this action, a weekly paper says Col. Fort has telephoned that he will come without fail and make a speech next Monday at one o'clock, presumably on his own account, or upon the invitation of individuals.

RUMPUS IN TRIGG

Said to Be a Serious Split in Association Circles.

Information comes of serious trouble in the ranks of the association of Trigg county. The Cadiz Record last week contained a notice that W. D. Nabb & Co., at Cerulean Springs, were no longer the association prizers at that point. Parties from Cerulean this week have brought the information that the firm of W. D. Nabb & Co. were charged with buying tobacco in Christian county contrary to the rules of the association and that much bitter feeling has been engendered. One report is that Will Nabb, who is a son of Esq. N. E. Nabb, has left Cerulean and that open threats are heard against some of his friends. In fact there is said to be danger of a falling out among those in the inner circle of the association. Parties who know the facts are so reticent that but few of the details can be obtained.
